Tiger Tales – A wise old rabbit tells her grand-daughter some of her adventures, recounting with verve and a sly, subversive humor some of the episodes surrounding tiger's rise to power, his abusive rule and ultimate downfall. This shadow theater piece, using figures modeled on antiques from our collection, deals humorously with issues of power and survival of the small and powerless in today's modern jungle.

Hao Bang Ya, Tigers! – To celebrate the Year of the Tiger, our newest hand puppet spectacle features four not-so-fierce striped felines, music dance, games audience participation and a surprise visit from the "End-of-the-Year Monster."

Music and Dance from China – This program includes an introduction to Chinese folk and classical music, as well as the lore and mythology of the Chinese instruments.

My music movement classes are based on my songs and I also teach yoga to children and adults. At my shows, children pop like popcorn, surf the waves, drive cars, visit a dance floor under the sea, and may even learn to “jam” with the band. My new “Butterfly Song” lets children explore through movement, a caterpillar becoming a butterfly. This song is based on the lovely Eric Carle book: The Hungry Caterpillar.
